FUND REVIEW

In Q1 2026, the fund's market value closed at BWP 2.4 billion. The portfolio outperformed its benchmark by 56 bps for the quarter under review, aided by portfolio positioning and optimised fund exposures amidst the noticeable downward trajectory in market rates. Additionally, the portfolio has continued to outpace its benchmark over the medium- and long-term periods.

MARKET OVERVIEW

Real GDP declined by 5.4% y/y in Q4 2025, offsetting the 8.2% rise in Q3 2025. For the whole of 2025, economic output contracted by 0.7%, following a negative growth of 2.8% realized in 2024. In Q4 2025, Mining and quarrying industry contracted by 47.0% y/y, with diamond output plummeting by 54.6% y/y in Q4 2025, due to temporary closures of the Orapa and Jwaneng mines. Non-mining GDP realized growth of 2.6%, lower than 4.2% realised in the comparable quarter last year, albeit higher than 1.6% in Q3 2025.

S&P Global Ratings ("S&P") lowered Botswana's long term and short-term sovereign ratings from BBB to BBB- and A2 to A3, respectively and maintained a negative outlook. The BBB-rating is one (1) notch above non-investment grade. The downgrade indicates the rating agency's assessment that global diamond demand is expected to persist in its weakness, adversely impacting Botswana's growth outlook as well as external and fiscal position.

Headline inflation in March rose to 4.2% with key contributions from highly weighted constituents of the Consumer Price Index (CPI) basket as follows: Transport (1.7%) and Food & Non-Alcoholic Beverages (0.9%). Local fuel pump prices were increased on 28 March following escalation in the US/Israel-Iran conflict which disrupted oil supplies in the Middle East via a key maritime route (i.e. Strait of Hormuz). According to Bank of Botswana (BoB), additional inflationary pressures arose from the increase in local transport fares and medical aid premiums.

The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) at its April meeting increased the Monetary Policy Rate (MoPR) by 200 bps to 5.5%, with the BoB, highlighting it largely as a technical tightening and a signalling decision. The MPC posited that the April rate hike supports the effectiveness of the exchange rate parameter adjustments that were implemented in July 2025. Moreover, the MPC directed commercial banks not to increase their prime lending rates (PLRs) in line with maintaining an accommodative monetary stance.

OUTLOOK

The Ministry of Finance (MoF) forecasts economic output to grow by 3.1% in 2026, with the anticipated improvement in the non-mining sector, bolstered by the execution of developmental programmes such as the Botswana Economic Transformation Programme (BETP). However, downside risk to growth, encompass geopolitical conflicts (e.g. US/Israel - Iran war) and possible supply chain disruptions with consequent impact on economic growth.

The central bank forecasts inflation to average 8.7% (formerly 4.5%) in 2026 and 5.8% (previously 4.7%) in 2027, with inflation anticipated to breach the upper bound of the objective range in Q2 2026. Inflationary pressures are tilted to the upside emanating from the possible rise in food and transport inflation as well as administered prices (e.g. electricity tariffs). BoB warns that inflation may be elevated beyond current estimates due to second round effects of domestic fuel price increases as well as the longevity and severity of the Foot and Mouth disease outbreak.

Money market yields (tenor deposits) remain on a downward trajectory supported by monetary policy measures including extension of repurchase agreement (repo) maturities by BoB. However, noticeable divergence has been realised with other short-term rates (e.g. treasury bills) which remain anchored.
